Karan paid wages worth Rs 1,00,000 in cash. So, this transaction involves two accounts:

Nominal Account of Wages and Real

Account of Cash.

Thus, paying wages worth Rs 1,00,000 in cash means wages are an expense to the business.

Golden Rules of Accounting - Overview & Types

2/8/2021 · All transactions of an entity must be accounted for. To account these transactions the entity must pass journal entries which will then summarise into ledgers. The journal entries are passed on the basis of the Golden Rules of accounting. To apply these rules one must first ascertain the type of account and then apply these rules.
